All the Fun of the Fairs

STORY OF THE MONTH

The art world descended on Paris once again for a week long focus on contemporary art, with the fair season driven by the 46th edition of the prestigious FIAC (Foire Internationale d'Art Contemporain) and the 5th anniversary of the younger, more edgy, Paris Internationale.

The FIAC took up residence once more in the Grand Palais for their main fair showing works from over 200 international galleries alongside their Hors Les Murs program situated in the Tuileries Gardens, on the Place Vendôme, on the Place de la Concorde, and in the Musée national Eugène Delacroix.

Paris Internationale, established in 2015 as an innovative alternative to traditional art fairs to support a young generation of galleries, installed for the second year running in an Hôtel Particulier near Parc Monceau, with a curated selection of international galleries and non-profit spaces.

Art is an endless source of inspiration to us, with refreshing unexpected takes on materials and their applications, guaranteed to open our minds to new possibilities...

Fall Window Shopping

“Autumn that year painted the countryside in vivid shades of scarlet, saffron, and russet, and the days were clear and crisp under the harvest skies.”

-Sharon Kay Penman

A time of transformation, when the streets are lined with fallen sodden leaves and our thoughts turn to the warm embrace of indoor life, cozying up to loved ones on the sofa, or dreaming of holidays in warmer climes. One thing is certain, it's time to switch over to our fall/winter wardrobe at home, and buy some new pieces to brighten up the increasingly darker days... A walk in Paris' famous luxury shopping streets is enough to lift anyone's spirits, and what better way to experience shopping than window shopping!
